Riskonnect for the Aerospace & Defense Industry

Riskonnect software gives you a single view of risk across your projects – and across your enterprise – for mission success.

The Aerospace & Defense industry faces some of the most complex risk management requirements. Projects need must be delivered on time, on budget, and perfectly to specification – without exception. At the same time, maintaining a reputation for performance excellence across the organization is more important than ever.

Do you know where your biggest risks lie?

> " Elbit is a little unique in that we're very program focused on our risks, but leadership can roll things up and see everything in a single picture. They can understand how this one program is affecting their portfolio, and they can drill down and get into the individual actions that people are doing. "
