

Geospatial Analysis

When a catastrophe or disaster strikes, risk managers and insurers must act fast to minimize losses. A catastrophe response system that remotely assesses property-specific impacts in near real time can help you quickly and knowledgeably respond to CAT events.

Riskconnect's Geospatial Analysis software maps CAT events, records the location and timing, and sends real-time alerts. You can determine where events and claims occur most frequently and see current changes, historical shifts, and variations over time.

STAY ON TOP OF EVENTS AS THEY UNFOLD

Get automated alerts to proactively prepare for and act during an impending natural catastrophe.

IMPROVE UNDERWRITING AND RISK MAKING DECISIONS

Accurately assess properties on a risk scale, ranging from very high risk to very low risk.

LOWER CLAIM COSTS AND EXPENSES

Anticipate and prioritize claims based on peril, geography, and intensity.

Find Answers with Location Intelligence

- Understand why some locations are more risk-prone than others by visualizing location-based data.
- Identify fraudulent claims by pinpointing the exact location of the insured property to confirm the legitimacy of a risk event and measure its severity.
- Recognize what areas are most prone to civil unrest, which could impact retail properties.

Assess the Impact of Climate Change

- Understand how rising sea levels and land temperatures will affect properties in low-lying coastal areas.
- Simulate past natural disasters to identify low-risk areas to build future properties.
- Visualize context with an easy-to-understand map for quick action.

Forecast and Mitigate Risk Outcomes

- Follow in real-time the current path of a hurricane and the possible impact on properties.
- Track global events against shipments, properties, exposures, and human capital to reduce severity.
- Overlay claims and property values on geospatial events to take precautionary measures in real time.
